Profile

For anyone who has grown up playing sports, it becomes evident early on that athleticism alone can only take you so far. Getting to that next level requires a strong work ethic, discipline and teamwork. Having grown up participating in a variety of sports, Spencer understood these principles early on and applies them to his practice in order to help our clients achieve success.

Spencer assists our securities and capital markets team in executing customized strategies that allow our clients to attain their goals and objectives. In particular, Spencer draws from his training and experience working in the financial sector to ensure he understands the clients objectives and assists them with achieving those objectives.
